QUEEN MARY SEES N. Y. TANGO DANCE

Expresses Approval of the One-
Step as Shown by American Professionals.

[By Cable to The Tribune.]

London, June 11.—The King and Queen saw the tango as danced in New York for the first time to-night at a dinner given by the Grand Duke Michael Mikhaylovich preceding a ball for the Countess Nada Torby at the Grand Duke's residence, Kenwood, Hampstead. The dancers, Maurice and Florence Walton, are the first Americans to appear by royal command to dance. Maurice was once a Bowery denizen and Florence was formerly a chorus girl.

They danced after dinner in the drawing room before the ball started. Only thirty persons were present, including Countess Torby, the Duchess of Marlborough, the Countess Nada and Zia Torby, the Grand Duke Paul, the Countess of Granard, the Duke and Duchess of Teck, Premier Asquith and Ambassador Page. They danced for forty-five minutes continuously. They had omitted the tango for fear of the royal displeasure, but the Queen asked Countess Torby, "Can they dance the tango for us? I've never seen it?"

So the tango was danced. Florence Walton wore an unsuit dress at the request of a court official.

The Queen said: "What a pretty frock!" and laughed and applauded delightedly, but the King was rather austere and only smiled at the grotesque solo dance by Maurice.

After sixteen figures had been done without a pause, including two invented for the occasion, the Queen demanded another one-step.

"I like that figure best of all," she said.

The dancers were detained so long that they were late on the Alhambra stage.

Two thousand persons attended Countess Torby's ball, and as a result of the professionals' exhibition the tango was afterward danced by aristocratic amateurs for the first time before royalty.

PRIEST DEFIES CITY TO MOVE CHURCH

Father Evers Predicts Religious War if St. Andrew's Is Touched.

ASSAULTS PLAN FOR NEW COURTHOUSE

President McAneny to Move Immediate Approval of Site and Specifications.

"If Mr. McAneny and the others want to force this thing through, they will bring on a religious war, for we will fight them to the last ditch."

This is the challenge thrown down last night by the Rev. Luke F. Evers, pastor of St. Andrew's Catholic Church, at Duane st. and City Hall Place, to President McAneny, of the Board of Aldermen, who, as chairman of the Committee on City Plan of the Board of Estimate, will recommend to-day that the board approve immediately the proposed new site and the courthouse building plans.

If the new site is adopted St. Andrew's will have to be torn down. It is one of the oldest parish churches in the city. Father Evers and other Catholics appeared in opposition to the plan at a public hearing May 19.

"When we appeared at the hearing," said Father Evers, "we asked that nothing definite be done until Cardinal Farley returned from Rome. The Cardinal is not an ordinary man and should not be treated in an ordinary way. He represents many thousands of people."

"Mr. McAneny found a way of leaving St. John's Church, an Episcopalian building, where it is. I can't see why he cannot find a way to leave St. Andrew's where it is. He might explain first why it was necessary to change the site, but that is none of my business. If he wants to start a war, let him start it."

The report of the Committee on City Plan, which, in addition to President McAneny, is composed of Borough Presidents Marks, Pounds, Mathewson, Conolly and McCormack, has this to say about St. Andrew's:

"The committee appreciates the inconvenience that would be caused to the congregation of St. Andrew's Church. To permit the building to remain would, however, seriously interfere with the proposed street lay-out. The representatives of the church have been assured that every effort will be made to leave the edifice untouched as long as possible; that at the time it is necessary to utilize the ground it covers—possibly several years hence—a way may be found to retain the church in the same vicinity by moving it to a convenient nearby location or by providing otherwise for its replacement."

"I do not see why steps should not be taken at once to acquire the land necessary to make the new site," said President McAneny. "I also think that the preliminary plan of the building should be approved. We have received estimates from three contractors of the highest standing, and from these it appears that the building may be erected within $10,000,000."
